The Author:

Back when she was 5 and in seaside holidays in Normandy, Virginie Tempelman remembers that she was already tidying everything up: towels, clothes, sunscreen, toys, etc. Broom in hand, she was cleaning the sand the adults put when walking in the house.

Once a grown-up and a mother, and following numerous moves, she became a pro of organization and tidying. Following her friends and family's many requests to share her secrets, she explains them all in this first title. At the time she wrote this book, she was living in New York City, which was a great source of inspiration for her.
