

Houses Full of Light

September 2018

Synopsis:

One of the most important quality people are looking for when searching for a new house is luminosity.

Natural light is brought thanks to windows, glass walls and Velux windows, and is skilfully measured out thanks to curtains, panels or blinds.

Light can also be artificial, and the choice made when selecting it can completely change the atmosphere of a room. As a decorative object, the light brings a sweet and zen atmosphere perfect for relaxation in living-rooms and bedrooms, but can also be more direct in the room aiming at working.

Thanks to many illustrated examples, this book will help you to select the most adapted choices for your house.

Content:

Opening on the outside, inside circulation, artificial light room by room.

The Author:

Sophie Giagnoni lives in Paris and is a journalist as well as an author. She works with many magazines and websites focused on decoration.
